CANDIDATE NAME: Sig Hutchinson

Wake County's jail population has increased disproportionately to the county's population growth over the past 30 years. At times, as many as 90 percent of people in jail in Wake County are being held before their day in court and without being convicted of any crime. Some of those people will pay hard-earned money to secure their release before trial, but many who cannot afford to pay money bail could be stuck in jail for days or weeks.

Studies show that spending just three days in jail can cause a person to lose their job, home, or custody of their children. And research suggests that pretrial detention increases the likelihood that a person will be convicted and receive a longer sentence. All of these harms disproportionately affect people of color and people who are living in poverty.

There are many ways to reduce the harm caused by jailing people before trial. County Commissioners can play a key role by seeking opportunities to fund pretrial services programs and supporting reforms by the Sheriff's Department and county courts.

1. One way to prevent the harm of pretrial incarceration and to combat mass incarceration is to avoid booking people into the jail in the first place. Law enforcement officers have the discretion to issue a citation (a ticket with a court date) instead of arresting someone. This policy has been successfully implemented in other counties for certain lower-level charges. Issuing more citations can not only prevent harmful pretrial incarceration, but it can also reduce costly jail overcrowding and save law enforcement time and money.

As a county commissioner, would you support the Wake County Sheriff's Department's expanded use of citations instead of arrest warrants for lower-level charges?

Absolutely!!!

2. Pretrial services programs are a key part of successful policies to keep people out of jail before their day in court and to help people get to their court dates. These programs range from basic supports such as court date reminders, court-based child care, and transportation vouchers, to programs such as mental health and substance use treatment and no-fee electronic monitoring.

As a county commissioner, would you commit to supporting pretrial services, and seek funding to expand pretrial services in your county?

Absolutely!!!

3. Pretrial services programs work hand-in-hand with court-system reforms to prevent the harms that come with requiring payment of secured money bonds in order to be released. Wake County lags behind other metropolitan counties in the state in addressing pretrial reform in a meaningful way.

As a county commissioner, will you encourage and support the pretrial reform efforts of the court-system actors in your county, and seek funding to facilitate those reforms where relevant?

Absolutely!!

I have been a champion of these issues as an area of interest since I was elected in 2104 with a 3 phase strategy of diversion on the front end, better treatment and educational opportunities while in the detention center and reentry programs once someone is released, to improve health and reduce recidivism. On the front end and to your point, citations, diversions from being booked and drug court as well as expungement opportunities all have risen to high levels of interest by me.

While in the detention center, we have expanded educational opportunities and life skill training and are now providing some reentry coordinators to work with some prerelease detainees. My approach for 2019 is to focus on three areas of reentry including medications and prescriptions upon release, peer counselor support programs and transit passes all of which we need today. Later, we need to add better access to housing, job skills, employment opportunities and support services such as food and medical services.

A lot of this work has been supported by my involvement with the creation of the Directors Group which has been meeting for more than 4 years and is made up of the Sherriff, DA Loren Freeman, Public Defender, Hospitals, Alliance (Behavioral Health), WakeBrook, and the County. We have made significant strides in many areas including the above mentioned and look forward to continuing this work. If you would like to know more, please feel free to contact me for more information about the work of the Director's Group or my interest in diversion, treatment while in detention and reentry. We are also very involved in the Behavioral Health Space, the loss of Medicaid while in detention and I am also VERY interested in Bail Bond Reform and would love to be a champion for it in Wake County.

Thanks:
